Teampall Éanna: Tá fothracha Theampall Éanna suite ag bun Chnoc Crú agus is Ceathrú an Teampaill a thugtar ar an talamh thart timpeall air. Deirtear gur thóg Naomh Éanna, naomh ón 5 ú haois an séipéal agus é ar a bhealach as Árainn. Tá áit adhlactha do pháistí (lisín) in aice le fothracha an tséipéil agus tobar beannaithe – Tobar Éanna, a chreidtear go bhfuil leigheas ann do shúile tinne. Tá Ballán (log lán le huisce sa chloch – agus díreach mar atá i gceist leis an Tobar Beannaithe, luaitear sa bhéaloideas áitiúil go bhfuil leigheas ag an uisce báistí a bhailíonn sa log sa chloch) ar an suíomh. Tabhair ar aird le do thoil go bhfuil Teampall Éanna ar thalamh phríobháideach.

Teampall Éanna: The ruins of Teampall Éanna are located at the foot of Crú Hill and the lands around it are known as Ceathrú an Teampaill. It is said that the 5th century saint, St. Enda, built the church whilst en route from Aran. Adjoining the church ruins, there is a children's burial ground (a lisin) and nearby a Holy Well – Tobar Éanna, which has, it is believed, a cure for sore eyes. There is also a Bullaun (a water filled depression in the stone- as with the Holy Well, local folklore attaches healing properties to the rainwater collecting in the stone's hollow) on the site.

Please note that Teampall Éanna is on private property.
